

Publication/Copyright permission for the Magyar Elektronikus Könyvtár*

The undersigned agrees to the online publication of the following work(s) via the Magyar Elektronikus Könyvtár:

At the same time I accept the MEK's undermentioned principles of the usage of the documents. Furthermore I declare that with the donation and the acceptance of the principles I am exercising only my actual rights, so this gesture of mine does not prejudice the right of others related to this document. I relinquish the copyright fees in relation to the MEK's services.

The MEK – as the digital collection and online service of the Hungarian National Széchényi Library – is allowed to publish this document on network or other electronic data medium for educational, scientific or other non-profit purposes, and the private users are allowed to use it or make a copy of it for private purposes – similarly to traditional library services. The Library has right on the documents only in the case of the above-mentioned usage, and the author/owner is entitled to have the copyrights, the proprietary and commercial rights and incomes.

The MEK's owners are obliged to affix the included copyright notice in all published copies of the document published. It always has lower priority than any other clauses for the use and dissemination contained in the document (if there are any). The operators of the MEK's services are obligated to remove the document from the public service if there is any question about the rights of publication, or if the owner/author asks for the removal of the item.

of the document

This document is from the Hungarian Electronic Library (abbr. MEK). The copyright and other privileges are owned by the author/owner of the document (if he/she is known). If the author or owner expressly specifies conditions regarding the distribution and usage somewhere in this text, then those terms overrule the limitations stated below. Furthermore he or she is responsible for that too that the distribution of this document in electronic form does not breach some other person's copyrights. The MEK administrators reserve the right to withdraw the document from the MEK collection if any doubt arises about the free distribution of this document. This document can be freely copied and distributed, but it can only be used for personal purposes and non-commercial applications, without any modification, and with the proper citation of the original source. Every other form of distribution and utilization requires a permission from the author/owner. If the document and its cover page contains a Creative Commons licence, then it grants the forms of free use. The Hungarian Electronic Library project's aim is to provide the academic circles with public domain e-publications in Hungarian or with relevance to Hungary. You can obtain information and ask questions about the MEK project at the info@mek.oszk.hu e-mail address. The URL of the central service is: <http://mek.oszk.hu>
